"This is really the book for the people, and there is not a household in the country in which education is properly valued where one can afford to do without a work of this kind. It is like the dictionary of the language. It has information about everything that one can think of, and its usefulness in the family is such that no book beside the Bible and the handy dictionary can be said to be more important. It seems as if its accuracy could not be successfully impeached; it is at once scholarly and popular, and the successive volumes will be eagerly waited for by thousands who have been acquainted with the earlier work."—Boston Herald.

Hay Fever.

We have known it to be summer, and the farrago at the tree-tops seemed no longer jubilant; the murmur of the breeze was ominous. For with the swelling buds, and the sparkling dews, came that exasperating scourge—Hay Fever. From that time, daily, as sure as sunrise, it returned; and while it lasted endurance and patience ceased to be virtues. Existence was but an irritating ordeal.

This distressing affliction begins its ravage as early as June; then adieu to peace and comfort. With others it delays until as late as September, and leaves an irritated condition for winter to aggravate. Like nasal catarrh, it is a disturbance of the mucous membrane. How serious and annoying it is, only the despairing sufferer knows. Hay Fever is disgustingly pertinacious, and baffles the doctors, until they resort to desperate and barbarous expedients—the most cruelly useless of which is burning out the interior of the nose. The practitioners yield to the disease; the disease seldom yields to the practitioner. One poison may antidote another, but it is scarcely philosophical to assert that torture may be used to obliterate the traces of agony. Thrashing a spavined horse does not limber his joints. This barbarous destruction of the nasal membrane for the removal of Hay Fever should look for a parallel precedent of decapitation as a preventive of headache. Why not employ Nature's remedy? Easy, natural, and efficacious. And what more exact fulfilment of these salutary conditions than that found in Drs. Starkey & Palen's scientific adjustment of the elements oxygen and nitrogen, to which the vitality of positive magnetism is added? Hundreds of Drs. Starkey & Palen's patients who have used Compound Oxygen report a removal of unhealthy conditions predisposing to Catarrh and Asthma and Hay Fever, and several who were at one time acute sufferers from Hay Fever report that they believe themselves to be entirely cured. The following are a few of the many testimonials received:

From Iron Mountain, Missouri, we have the following letter, dated April 6, 1885, from Mr. Ellis P. Cayce:
"I have a profound reverence for Compound Oxygen, and regard it as a great medical agent for many of our numerous ills. It is now about a year since I received my Home Treatment from you. I was at that time suffering intensely from neuralgia. Three or four weeks' use of Compound Oxygen cured me, and I had no return of the disease. I have suffered severely from periodical attacks of hay fever for several years. Last summer I caught it at the usual time, but a week's use of Compound Oxygen broke it up. I have used the Oxygen on various members of my family in cases of colds, always with excellent effect. I expect always to keep a supply of Oxygen in my family in the future."

"WARRINGTON, N. C., Oct. 21, 1886.
"Some time in August I ordered a Treatment of Oxygen for my aunt. She had suffered with hay fever regularly every year for fifteen years. When I ordered the Compound Oxygen her annual attack of hay fever had already commenced, and as you did not promise relief after the commencement of the attack we were not very hopeful. But to our astonishment and joy the Oxygen relieved her at once, and only on one evening after she commenced the Treatment, and then only for a few hours, did she have any considerable trouble with her hay fever. Though she really had hay fever, it was so slight after she commenced using the Oxygen that she was scarcely conscious of it. I do not know what Compound Oxygen will do for hay fever in general, but this case of fifteen years' standing was mastered by it. You are at liberty to use this in any way you may see proper for the good of hay-fever victims. I believe it will cure hay fever. It did in this case at any rate."
REV. T. J. TAYLOR."

"PITTSBURGH, ME., Oct. 18, 1886.
"I have been waiting to give you my hay-fever report. I am happy to inform you that the Compound Oxygen Treatment overpowered the disease this, the second season. It has been worth more to me than I can express. I want every one afflicted with the same to avail themselves of the Compound Oxygen, and am willing you should use my name if you choose to do so. For more than thirty years, every autumn, I have suffered from this terrible disease. The only relief I ever received was at the seaside; even there I had the symptoms."
MRS. L. C. NICKELS."

To learn more of how the Compound Oxygen acts upon chronic cases, send for the treatise on "Compound Oxygen—its Mode of Action and Results." It will be mailed to you free by DRs. STARKEY & PALEN, 1529 Arch Street, Philadelphia, Pa., 331 Montgomery Street, San Francisco, Cal., 58 Church Street, Toronto, Canada.
